Kit Up are the exclusive suppliers of authentic branded football outfits to the Westin Football League. The business has had difficulty sourcing inventory from its main supplier and is considering making changes to the business.

The business is considering two options for its future operations.

The first option involves the owner contributing funds to the business to help them to source the outfits from a social enterprise in Melbourne that employees disadvantaged youth. The new operation would allow the business to target other sporting leagues and to have more control over the quality of their inventory.

The second option involves importing the outfits from overseas. The business will need to borrow funds to buy a warehouse to store inventory that would be imported in bulk. The business would deal with an importer who would source the outfits from a range of supplies. The importer has a reputation for being able to find the best deal, although it does come with some risk as they use a number of sources and quality control has been an issue for them in the past.

The owner is leaning toward choosing option one.

The following budgeted indicators have been prepared based on the two options that the business has for the business.

Indicator	Option one (Estimate)	Option two (Estimate)

Debt Ratio	22%	51%

Net Profit Margin	14%	12%
